There are two kinds of fits. We are giving the clothiers one kind (like above)-and giving our customers the other kind!

No other clothiers clear out each season's stock as we do!

Not a vestige of this summer stock shall be on hand by September 10th. There you have the reason for these ridiculously low prices:—

REPORTED DEALS ON HAND.

Interesting Gossip From Cincinnati Regarding the Senators. Harry Weldon in the Cincinnati Enquirer indulges in the following interesting, if not entirely accurate, gossip:

Amos Rusie, the celebrated thunderbolt pitcher, will next season be a member of the Washington (D. C.) club. At least that is the story that is floating around the eastern base ball circuit. Ever since "Scrappy Bill" Joyce joined the New Yorks he has been doing his utmost to patch up an amnesty between his president and the hoosier pitcher. Falling in this he has decided to do the best he can in the way of a trade. It will be remembered that I stated in my special from Washington yesterday that Earl Wagner, president of the Washingtons, had filed charges with President Young against the captain of the New Yorks. As I understand it, the players that Joyce offered bigger money to play with the New Yorks, if they could get away from the Washingtons, were Selbach and De Montreville. "Scrappy" played alongside of both of these players and is thoroughly conversant with their worth. Now the talk is that the charges filed by Wagner against Joyce will not be pressed, but that a deal is on whereby Rusie is to be excharged for the two players mentioned. De Montreville is recognized as the hoosier pitcher. Failing in this he has to be exchanged for the two players men-tiored. De Montreville is recognized as one of the greatest youngsters that ever played ball. Selbach is also one of the greatest outfielders in the profession. He

In making this trade Freedman would be "killing two birds with one stone," figuratively speaking. To start with it is hardly possible after what has occurred this season that Rusie would give the New York club his best services next season. No matter how much he might try, the screness would still rankle in his besom soreness would still rankle in his bosom. In trading him to Washington Freedman in trading him to Washington Freedman would figure on revenge by placing him with a team away down in the race. Possibly the success that attended another deal made by the New York club with the Washington club may have some influence on the present deal. In the fall of 1893 the New York club paid the Washington club $7,500 for the release of Meekin and Farreli. The money was well experience. ington club $7,500 for the release of Meekin and Farrell. The money was well expended with Meekin and Farrell, the Giants finished second in the race in 1894 and played for the Temple cup. The Joyce trade is also to the liking of the Giants. Is it any wonder that Freedman should have a "rankering" for senatorial talent. Possibly the deal has not yet been consummated, and the publication of the story will likely bring forth denials. From a reliable source, a man very close to the reliable source, a man very close to the throne of the Washington club, a hint of this deal was given late last night. or this deal was given late last night. There are a number of other deals on the carpet. There is going to be a "rattling of old bones," and several league teams will be shaken from center to circumference between now and next spring. Worned Joyce to Keep Hands Off. President N. E. Young of the National League has mailed Captain Joyce of the New York base ball club a letter warning him of the consequences of attempting to secure players from other clubs by an offer of an increase of salary. It is said that Joyce approached a member of the Washington club with this intention some time since. Mr. Young said, in regard to dent. The case, he said, was not an unusual one. A warning to the offender has always been sufficient, and punishment has never been inflicted. The national board has full power to punish the offense as one against the general welfare of the league.

Surely not one from our old established and reliable factories, whose 1896 products are admired in every land and clime. The modern bicycle is worth $100 in gold or its equivalent, and let no one think that it could ever be bought by $100 in a debased coin worth about 53 per cent of the same amount in gold-the standard of the com mercial world. One hundred dollars in silver currency, unsupported by an ample gold reserve, would buy a bicycle that re-tails now at about $50 or $55, and those made of the best materials and workman-ship would cost nearly $200 in silver. Reason any way you choose, this is the inevit

When a person goes in quest of a bicycle, he naturally aims to make his money go as far as possible. He is no admirer of high prices, especially if he knows that they are put up artificially. No theories for the input up artificially. No theories for the individual who wants anything and is counting out the money with which to pay for it. The proposal of the advocates of free silver to put up prices to consumers by debasing our currency will not be likely to strike the fancy of the purchaser who comes to understand it.

Bicycles are paid for by a draft upon in come, and the latter is worth just what it will purchase. Free coinage is, therefore, will purchase. Free collage is, therefore, for the wage earner or the salaried man, a device to reduce his income by hearly one-half. Imagine the feelings of a would-be cyclist who had dollar by dollar saved up a hundred or so by the strictest economy and put it in the savings bank, drawing out of the bank an amount which would, while the country was on a gold basis, have purchased the best bicycle made, and paying it all for a medium or low-grade mount under the free silver regime!

It can be taken for granted that the cyclists of America are too shrewd to join in clists of America are too shrewd to join in the senseless clamor for a financial system which would make the problem of obtain-ing a new wheel one of double the usual proportions—if not, indeed, entirely out of the question with the rank and file. The question is one that concerns the manu-facturer, dealer and rider alike. Each would suffer by such a radical change in our financial system. our financial system.

EMANCIPATION IN ICELAND.

The Icelandic Woman Has Long Enjoyed Distinct Individuality. From the San Francisco Wave.

How does it happen that the woman of Iceland has quietly possessed herself of emancipation long befores the women of Europe and America dreamed of clamoring for it? From the earliest period the Icelandic woman has enjoyed distinct individuality. The wife has always held the place of an equal with her husband in matters pertaining to the home. In the old days she wore a bracelet, from which hung the insignia of office-her keys and purse. Now that she has laid aside the gold wrist band, these significant household accouter ments are carried in the dress pocket, but they are hers, nevertheless. In all matters of church and parish she has her vote, and, as the church and state are combined, this as the church and state are combined, this is really a civic privilege.

She has full municipal suffrage, but as yet cannot vote upon matters pertaining to commerce nor for members of parliament, though there is a strong sentiment abroad in favor of giving her these additional advantages. Women take part in many political meetings and talk upon all political vantages. Women take part in many political meetings and talk upon all political subjects. During the Althing sessions great numbers of the most intelligent women of the capital city are in constant attendance. For some years there has existed a political society of women, and when momentous cal society of women, and when momentous questions affecting their interests are before the legislative body large meetings are called and addressed by women, setting forth their claims.
